

ENHANCED CONTINUING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME CPD SEMINAR

The Limitations of Corporate Governance in the CSR Agenda

In this seminar, the speaker will discuss:

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) issues can be categorized as internal and external issues. Internal issues affect companies, shareholders, creditors and employees. Examples of corporate abuse of internal issues include Enron and Worldcom scandals. External issues on the other hand affect a wider spectrum of stakeholders including the society at large. Such issues include anti-corruption, environmental abuses and human rights.

Corporate governance is seen as a means of promoting improved corporate behaviour. This seminar aims to highlight the limited role corporate governance plays in ensuring external CSR and consider a way forward for corporate governance in the CSR Agenda. Discussions will include an analysis of the shareholder v stakeholder theories; impact of relevant laws such as the 2006 revised UK companies Act on CSR and corporate governance; and the role of institutional investors.
